“NEXT ERP Career School... Explore, Build and Flourish”

Since our establishment in 2005, we have recognized the significance of the digital future and the crucial role that talent plays in an organization's success. Instead of pursuing general IT qualifications, we have prioritized specialization, particularly in ERP paths for leading technology providers. Our focus has been on developing a comprehensive ecosystem around ERP careers, starting from exploration to building a successful career. To complement our offerings, we have also introduced offshoring services and created the first ERP recruitment platform called "ERP Resources HUB," exclusively dedicated to ERP resources. Throughout the past 18 years, we have pointed our methodology and expertise to align with the dynamic market demands, ensuring that our customers receive the necessary education and job opportunities to thrive in their careers.

Training Need Analysis

A training needs analysis provides a comprehensive assessment of your company's objectives and goals, considering various factors before determining the specific training requirements. This evaluation considers factors such as your employees' skill levels, risk profile, and the need for specialized training. By conducting a thorough analysis, we can identify the precise training needs that align with your company's overall vision and tailor the training programs accordingly.

Customized training Programs

To enhance the skills and competencies of lead workers, supervisors, and managers, an organization requires personalized programs. These programs assist in expanding their abilities, building bench strength for succession planning, and supporting employees who have recently been promoted or who have taken on greater responsibilities in the company. Such customized programs are crucial for the growth and expansion of an organization.

Resources Hub

Next Academy is your solution for finding highly skilled IT professionals to join your team. We have a diverse pool of competent and certified resources from various fields within the IT industry. Whether you require junior, experienced, or senior consultants, we can provide your business with the right individuals to meet your specific demands.
